

Report of Philosophy Students' Association, AUS Council 27 November 2019

- Current Projects
  - Philopolis planning is being accomplished ably by Inter-University Affairs Representative Adam Amsel; finances are in order, as the FMC approved the budget request recently, and the launch party for the event occurred on 20 November and had a good turnout.
  - Film nights, organized by Social Events Coordinator Kristen VanderWee continue and have had a steady turnout.
  - A Trivia Night event occurred for graduate and undergraduate students on Thursday 21 November.
  - The cheque for the proceeds from an earlier apartment crawl event hosted in conjunction with several other humanities departmental associations was collected, and the profit was quite modest.
  - Academic Affairs Coordinator Owen Gongos has ably continued to facilitate tutoring sessions for PHIL 210 Deductive Logic.
  - In my capacity as AUS Legislative Council Representative for PSA, I've met with several representatives for smaller departments in order to explain and give as a blueprint the PSA Constitution, which includes a robust General Assembly procedure, for the purposes of increasing democratization of departments affiliated with AUS and to hopefully increase student engagement with the affairs of their respective departmental association.
- Upcoming Initiatives
  - The Philosophy Department will be having its yearly Holiday Party on Friday 6 December.

I will not be attending the final session of Legislative Council on 27 November for personal reasons. In my absence, I wish all the AUS executives and Legislative Council Representatives an enjoyable winter break and a non-stressful exams season.

The PSA meets Mondays at 5:30pm in Leacock 931 (the undergraduate students' lounge).

Respectfully submitted,

Matt Gery
PSA External Affairs Coordinator
